Flood Damage Now Estimated At Half-Million

'Walnut Hit Hard; 11 Bridges Out

Lancaster Counts $2 Million Loss

Damage to Pickaway County bridges, roads, crops and livestock as a result of Thursday's flash flood was expected to exceed the half-million dollar mark in Walnut Township.

New reports of widespread devastation caused officials to up their conservative estimate of $300,000 on state and county roads and bridges alone.

The raging flood waters topped bridges into creek bottoms, ripped out road culverts, inundated acres of bottomland crops and swept away stranded livestock in Walnut Township.

Meanwhile, National Guardsmen went on flood duty Friday in Lancaster which was struck by a $2 million flash flood. Some 2,000 persons were forced to flee their homes in the west end of the city.

Four more bridges in the Walnut Township area were added to Thursday's toll raising the total to 11 which were damaged in the early morning downpour.

COUNTY Engineer Henry T. McCrady said four steel structures over Little Walnut Creek and Turkey Run were a total loss. He reported the structures ran from 50 to 80 feet in length and will necessitate closing the roads from three to four months.

Heavy damage was caused to corn and wheat fields inundated by the muddy waters which swept off livestock and destroyed fences.

McCrady listed the four roads in Walnut Township which will be closed indefinitely as:

No. 84 on the Ett-Noeher road; No. 43 on the North East Ringgold pike; and Plazier road No. 86. However, the Circleville-Winchester road may be opened within two weeks providing damage is not too extensive, McCrady stated.

Older residents of Walnut Township declared the damage there to be the worst in their memory.

Following is a partial list of some damage caused to farmers:

Porter Helping Inflation Study

WASHINGTON, July 23—President Truman today named Paul A. Porter, former OPA administrator, as a special assistant to coordinate presentation of the President's anti-inflation program to the special session of Congress.

The White house, at the same time, announced that the cabinet is in "complete agreement" with the recommendations the President will make to the Congress next Tuesday for measures to curb high prices and the other points of his legislative program.

Military's Need Of More Trucks Recalls Mass Junking In War II

WASHINGTON, July 23—The draft machinery is being set up. According to Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director, the new Selective Service system will start pulling men in the 19-through-26 bracket into the armed services for a 21-month stretch by October.

Already, 18-year-olds are flocking to the recruiting stations to sign up for a 12-month hitch which will immunize them against having to serve the longer period when they are a year older—barring the advent of war, of course.

Thus, even before the newly-legalized machinery is rolling, the nation's manpower is being mobilized to present a national preparedness front in the face of current world crises.

Meanwhile, the nation's military materiel situation continues to remain critical, and the manner in which it got that way cur-

HEAVY RAINS caused a flash flood of the Hocking River inundating a large portion of the west side of Lancaster. The flash flood reached a depth of six feet within a matter of minutes, threatened 2,000 homes and did damage in Fairfield County estimated at $2 million. It was the tail-end of this storm which lashed into Pickaway County's Walnut township.

Yankee Crack Troops Give Show Of Strength To Reds

BERLIN, July 23—More than a thousand crack troops of the U. S. Army constabulary staged a parade on the road to Soviet-held Potsdam today in a "show of strength" described as training maneuvers.

The troops were fully equipped with rifles and field packs and marched briskly down the Potsdamerhausssee, the broad highway leading to Potsdam. The highway is an extension of Potsdamerstrasse, the main thoroughfare of Berlin.

U. S. officials denied the parade had any special meaning. The troops were accompanied by armored cars.

The demonstration followed release by Soviet occupation authorities of two U. S. military policemen who had been held for 15 hours.

The American provost marshal said that the men, Pvt. George G. Hunt, of Pike County, Ohio, and Pfc. Elwood Dwinell, of Mobton, Wash., were arrested by 12 armed Russian soldiers.

The Soviets also released Richard F. Goff, of Altoona, Pa., assistant chief of the domestic labor section of the Berlin military post engineer's office.

GOFF HAD been held 30 and one-half hours at the Soviet Kommandatura in Marienborn on a charge of attempting illegal crossing of the border between the Soviet and Western zones.

The two MPs said their detention was without incident. They denied reports of any struggle with the Soviet troops.

A German who said he had seen them taken into custody yesterday on Berlin's famed Unter Den Linden said he saw a "scuffle" before the Americans were "overpowered."

The provost marshal said, (Continued on Page Two)

Crowd Cheers Wallace Arrival In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, July 23—A crowd of nearly 1,000 persons cheered Henry A. Wallace, third party presidential aspirant, when he arrived in Philadelphia by train today for the opening of the new party's convention tonight.

Wallace, wearing a gray suit and powder-blue tie, emerged from the first car—a pullman—and waved to the throng.

A band struck up, and the crowd sang, "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah!" music from loud speakers accentuated the din.

Wallace's runningmate—Vice-Presidential Candidate Senator Glen Taylor of Idaho—was on hand to welcome the party's standard bearer.

Wallace drew a titter from the crowd when he said:

PEACE HEADQUARTERS 'BOMBED'

UN To Seek To Ban Flights Over Lake Success Center

LAKE SUCCESS, July 23—The United Nations considered today an appeal to the Civil Aeronautics Authority to ban all flights over the Lake Success area.

The action was sought following the noisy but harmless "bombing" of UN buildings by a small private plane believed piloted by a war veteran who felt that "somebody ought to blast the UN into action."

He was identified as Stephen J. Supina, of Stafford Springs, Conn., a wartime B-17 gunner.

No damage was done and no one was hurt by the explosives dropped from the plane. The blast occurred about 100 feet above the delegates' entrance.

But many representatives expressed fears that the incident possibly could set the patterns for similar—but much more serious—attempts.

Police quotes Supina's brother, Thomas, as saying:

"Steve had a rough time in the war and has been mentally ill. For some time he has had a fixation of correcting the world situation to bring about peace.

"He had been through a war and seen many of his buddies die, he did not want to go through another war and he kept saying that somebody ought to 'blast' the UN into action."

Thomas added that his brother had been depressed about the Berlin crisis.

UN security officials were reported "shaking in their boots" at the thought of what could occur.

7 Murders Blamed To Crime Spree

VAN WERT, July 23—One gun-crazy ex-convict was shot and fatally wounded, his companion in a two weeks crime wave that included seven murders was captured, and two police officers were wounded near Van Wert today.

John Coulter West, 24-year-old bespectacled parolee, was fatally wounded when he and Robert Muri Daniels, 22, attempted to run through a police road blockade in a truck-trailer loaded with new automobiles.

Van Wert City Police Sgt. Leonard Conn was shot in the chest and seriously wounded before he fired the shot that proved fatal to West two hours later.

Frank A. Friemuth, the Van Wert County game warden, was shot in the arm by West in the exchange of several shots with the bandit.

SHERIFF Roy E. Shaffer said he and Conn were stopping automobiles and trucks at the intersections of two state highways when the auto-carrier truck approached.

He said that West was driving and that he emerged from the cab of the truck with his gun blazing. One bullet tore into

Cost Of Living Hits All-Time High On June 15

WASHINGTON, July 23—The government reported today that the cost of living in the United States reached an all-time high in mid-June.

A 56-city survey by the Bureau of Labor Statistics on June 15 showed:

1. Retail food prices increased 1.5 percent from May to June to a level 47 percent above the end of OPA controls in the Summer of 1946.
2. Prices of fuel and house furnishings went up 0.6 percent.
3. Rents climbed 0.3 percent.
4. Clothing prices declined 0.3 percent.

The BLS reported that food prices increased last month in 50 of the 56 cities surveyed.

The increases ranged from 0.1 percent in Dallas, Minneapolis and St. Paul to 3.5 percent in Butte, Mont. Among the few declines in food costs were those of 0.2 percent in Los Angeles and 0.6 percent in San Francisco.

For the nation as a whole, however, the food price index in mid-June was 16 percent above the Post World War I peak reached in June, 1920—a few months before the start of a business recession.

Mainly responsible for the food price rise from mid-May to mid-June were the average increases of 5.5 percent for meats and five percent for eggs.

HOLLYWOOD, July 23—David Griffith, 63, the "master" of the motion picture, died in Temple hospital here today of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Griffith had been in a coma since yesterday morning. He was stricken in his apartment the night before and taken to the hospital.

A niece, Ruth Griffith, and a nephew, Willard Griffith, both of Santa Ana, were at the bedside of the man who won eternal fame with his famous "Birth of a Nation."

Herbert's Grip On Assembly Holds; Full Program Is OK'd

COLUMBUS, July 23—A 10-hour special session of the Ohio legislature enacted Governor Herbert's program exactly as he submitted it and was to go home tonight.

Like the well-oiled machine it is, the administration leadership batted down all attempts to amend the chief executive's proposals and finished its work at 11:30 p. m. (EST).

However, a skeleton session was scheduled for today for the signing of bills and the formal sine die adjournment.

Opposition which threatened the administration program right up to the time the convening gavel fell collapsed as soon as the session got under way. As a result, the legislature did this and this only:

1. Eliminated the sales tax on all purchases under 41 cents, effective Aug. 1, saving Ohioans some $12 to $15 million annually;
2. Increased maximum old age pensions and aid to the blind from $50 to $55 a month, and

3. Appropriated $6,350,000 to the welfare department as follows:

$3 million to increase the state's matching of poor relief funds from 29 to 50 percent; $1,850,000 to pay the increase in old age pensions; $1,200,000 for the increased cost of food for the 38,000 inmates in the 27 state institutions, and $300,000 for the increased cost of institutional coal.

Supreme Court Gives Wallaceites Left-Handed Spot On Ohio Ballot

COLUMBUS, July 23—Supporters of Third Party Presidential Candidate Henry A. Wallace won a partial place on the Ohio ballot today.

The supreme court ruled that presidential electors backing the former vice-president could qualify by petition to have their names placed on the presidential ballot as electoral college candidates.

Twenty-five such candidates had filed 46,000 petitions with Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel, who had refused to recognize them although only 23,000 valid signatures are needed.

The electoral candidates then filed the writ of mandamus against Hummel, demanding that they and Wallace, together with his running mate, Sen. Glenn Taylor of Idaho, be placed on the ballot.

The high court, however, held that Wallace and Taylor could not be placed on the ballot because they were not candidates selected by a national convention whose delegates were elected at the Ohio primary.

Thus, to vote for Wallace and Taylor in November, one would have to mark an "X" in front of each of the 25 electoral candidates' names.

The high court also overruled Hummel in another case in which the secretary had disqualified the Wallace-for-President committee on the ground that three of the ten signers of the committee's loyalty affidavit were Communists.

The supreme court held that Hummel's action was not justified even if his charges of Communism were true, since there was no proof on the secretary's part that, even as Communists, they individually plotted the overthrow of the government by force or violence.

Dewey And Ike Holding Parley

PAWLING, N. Y., July 23—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, conferred at his Pawling farm today with Gen. of the Armies Dwight D. Eisenhower, who rejected draft movements for both GOP and Democratic White House nominations.

typical of those due to be smoked out during the next few weeks. For a sizeable percentage of such equipment, reportedly unadaptable to civilian use, already has been lost to the military.

A shocking proportion of it lies discarded, rusting in junk-piles around the world. Many expensive pieces were junked merely because they needed minor repairs and there were no funds to provide them during the early postwar period.

Other truck-trailers and tank-trailers needed no repair whatever, but when the troops were pulled out, no provision was made for shipping them home.

Besides, most of the equipment, built to military specifications, was said to be too heavy to meet Interstate Commerce Commission requirements, and

Here in Washington, the truck-trailer manufacturers made a good case for themselves and their need. They pointed out that during the war their civilian production almost stopped while they manufactured thousands and upon thousands of truck-trailers and tank-trailers according to military specifications for the war effort.

Men who drifted around the world during the war saw those pieces of equipment performing yeoman service all the way from the famed "Red Ball Highway," which became a rolling supply-line across Europe, to the remote Pacific outposts where huge planes passing through were refueled and sent on their way in a matter of minutes.

What then has happened to all that equipment?

In the answer to that oft-repeated question lies a scandal rently is causing worried huddles all the way from the Pentagon to Capitol Hill.

Unquestionably, it is one of the subjects which will be brought up early in the special session, and charges will be hurled back and forth between political parties and between federal and military branches in a frantic effort to find who was at fault.

But already there is general agreement that the critical situation, developing this soon after the war and in the face of growing international unrest, is a national scandal that should never be repeated.

Typical is the case of trucks, truck-trailers and tank-trailers, which was brought to light this week by the appeal of manufacturers of such equipment for more steel with which to increase their output to meet the demands of a postwar civilian economy.

One Bandit Dies After Gun-Battle

Conn's chest and then Conn's return fire hit West.

Daniels was hiding in one of the new automobiles on the truck-trailer and after the shooting, he descended to the ground with his hands up.

Taken to the Van Wert County jail, Daniels told state highway patrolmen that he had been in all the places where seven murders were committed but that West was the triggerman.

The crime spree included the holdup-murder on July 9 of a Columbus tavern owner; the murder of a Michigan tourist camp proprietor; the kidnap-murder of a Mansfield reformatory official and his wife and daughter; the cold-blooded shooting of a farmer near Tiffin last night, and the murder of Orville Taylor, driver of the auto-carrier truck in which the bandits ended their spectacular career.

CONN, 30, was taken to Van Wert City hospital where he was pronounced in critical condition.

The gun-crazed West also was taken to the Van Wert hospital where he died at 11:18 a. m. Friemuth's arm wound was not serious.

Daniels, who did not offer resistance after his bandit companion was felled by bullets, protested that West was the actual killer in all of the murders.

However, Daniels refused to sign a confession.

The murder trail of the two former Mansfield reformatory inmates was ended by the biggest manhunt in Ohio history.

The entire northwest section of the state was the scene of road blockades after the bandits made their latest appearance at Tiffin last night.

West and Daniels are believed to have gone to a Tiffin tourist home after they staged a grudge kidnap-slitting in Mansfield early Wednesday.

The bandits invaded the home of John E. Niebel, 50-year-old superintendent of the reformatory farm, and kidnaped him, his 52-year-old wife and their 21-year-old daughter. Their bodies were found later in the day in a cornfield near Mansfield.

LAST NIGHT, the bandit pair in the same gray pontiac in which they started their crime spree two weeks ago, pulled up alongside the automobile of James Smith, 25-year-old farmer of near Tiffin. One of the bandits, later identified as West, demanded Smith's driver's license and later shot and killed him as his wife looked on helplessly.

The bandits then apparently went to a roadside park and shot and killed Taylor, a Niles, Mich., auto-truck driver.

The body of Taylor was found and his identification was not established until after the killers were captured near Van Wert, some 50 miles away.

Daniels is the son of a Columbus plaster contractor and has a police record dating back to 1941 when he was sentenced to the boys' industrial school at Lancaster for automobile theft.

In 1943, Daniels was sentenced to the reformatory on an unarmed robbery charge in Waverly, in Southern Ohio. He later escaped from an honor camp, was recaptured and taken back to the Mansfield institution from which he was paroled in September, 1947.

West was a former resident of Parkersburg, W. Va. He was arrested three times in Cleveland and finally was sentenced to the reformatory on two counts of grand larceny. He was paroled last March 31.

Officials have theorized that either West or Daniels held a grudge for Niebel from the time they served at Mansfield. Niebel was known as a strict disciplinarian.

West and Daniels were linked definitely to the brutal kidnap-murder of the Niebel family at the time of the Smith slaying near Tiffin last night. Patrolmen said Niebel's driver license was found near the Smith auto. It was the first definite evidence to link West and Daniels to the Mansfield murders.

thus not worth the cost of salvage and shipment.

Finally, to have stored and maintained it at overseas depots would have required men, money and a preparedness not completely out of harmony with the postwar disarmament and demobilization mood.

So, that which could not be sold—at almost giveaway prices—was, at all practical purposes, junked. Belgium bought quite a bit of rolling stock.

Also, in case you like to speculate on such things, Argentina found it practical to purchase some of the surplus truck-trailer equipment and worth shipping to South America.

It is, of course, easy to cast recriminations—particularly in an election year—but the probability is that, since the public largely established the national mood, all of us are at least partially at fault. But placing the blame does not ease the grimness of the picture.

Soon now, with manpower being remobilized, the military again will be needing more truck-trailer equipment. With industrial decentralization a major defense plan, the domestic demand for such equipment has multiplied almost overnight—to the extent that the manufacturers already are crying for more steel.

licans and 12 Democrats voted against it.

Attempts to amend the Herbert program were many, but every one was defeated.

They included unsuccessful efforts to reduce the overall sales tax from three to two percent; to increase pension maximums to $60 a month instead of $55; to eliminate the sales tax on medicines, restaurant meals, artificial limbs, funeral supplies and coal for residential heating; to allocate one third of all sales taxes collected back to the county of origin, and to vacate the lowest bracket sales tax field—that under 41 cents—so that cities which desired to do so might levy a one-cent tax on such purchases.

The blocking of the opposition was masterly.

Herbert overcame the objections of the state's trade associations to his sales tax reduction proposal by guaranteeing them against flat three percent assessments on gross sales and reiterating his promise to withhold the effective date of the reduction until Aug. 1.

This would give them a week to get their bookkeeping systems in order.

A move by Cincinnati senators to fight for additional aid to local governments was stymied by a senate Republican caucus which bound its members to go along with the governor's program.

An attempt to increase the maximum pensions to $60 a month, blocked in the house finance committee when Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood pointed out that Ohio's average $47 pension check would be the largest in the nation, was blocked again on the floor when the administration received all but two-score votes on the proposed amendment.

THE SESSION was unusually well attended, with only nine of the 127 living house members absent and 33 of 36 elected senators in attendance. Not a single "nay" vote was cast against any proposal in the senate.

The upper chamber also confirmed 40 appointments made by the governor since the last special session Dec. 4.

Herbert came in for rough treatment from a member of his own Republican Party only once.

Damage to state roads and bridges in Fairfield, Washington, Noble and Hocking Counties was set at an additional half-million or more by Highway Director Earl Reeb.

LETTERS To the Editor

Editor, The Herald:

My indignation has been aroused by a councilman's recent statement that he would not blame people for staying away from Circleville because the city does not or cannot provide certain additional services.

If that councilman is really interested in getting more people to move to Circleville, suppose he and his colleagues get busy and pass some ordinances to protect the health and property of people who already live here.

Many residents are unaware that if a man owns the site he can erect any sort of building anywhere in Circleville, without the slightest consideration for the health or comfort of the neighbors. This was recently demonstrated in a nice residential section.

Among other things this neighborhood is now plagued by an open fire that burns almost every afternoon, and pours nauseating smoke into nearby homes. Housewives have repeatedly complained that their clean laundry is fouled by the smoke. And the fire creates a serious hazard. Yet the police and fire department are unable to do anything about it, because Circleville has no ordinance against open fires.

When Council provides us with the protection which other cities already have, and which it could provide without additional expense, we tax-payers will be more willing to have our taxes increased to provide additional services.

One Bandit Dies After Gun-Battle

Conn's chest and then Conn's rear hit West.

Daniels was hiding in one of the new automobiles on the truck-trailer and after the shooting, he descended to the ground with his hands up.

Taken to the Van Wert County jail, Daniels told state highway patrolmen that he had been in all the places where seven murders were committed but that West was the triggerman.

The crime spree included the holdup-murder on July 9 of a Columbus tavern owner; the murder of a Michigan tourist camp proprietor; the kidnap-murder of a Mansfield reformatory official and his wife and daughter; the cold-blooded shooting of a farmer near Tiffin last night; and the murder of Orville Taylor, driver of the auto-carrier truck in which the bandits ended their spectacular career.

CONN, 30, was taken to Van Wert City hospital where he was pronounced in critical condition.

The gun-crazed West also was taken to the Van Wert hospital where he died at 11:18 a. m. Friemuth's arm wound was not serious.

Daniels, who did not offer resistance after his bandit companion was felled by bullets, protested that West was the actual killer in all of the murders.

However, Daniels refused to sign a confession.

The murder trail of the two former Mansfield reformatory inmates was ended by the biggest manhunt in Ohio history.

The entire northwest section of the state was the scene of road blockades after the bandits made their latest appearance at Tiffin last night.

West and Daniels are believed to have gone to a Tiffin tourist home after they staged a grudge kidnap-slitting in Mansfield early Wednesday.

The bandits invaded the home of John E. Niebel, 50-year-old superintendent of the reformatory farm, and kidnaped him, his 52-year-old wife and their 21-year-old daughter. Their bodies were found later in the day in a cornfield near Mansfield.

LAST NIGHT, the bandit pair in the same gray pontiac in which they started their crime spree two weeks ago, pulled up alongside the automobile of James Smith, 25-year-old farmer of near Tiffin. One of the bandits, later identified as West, demanded Smith's driver's license and later shot and killed him as his wife looked on helplessly.

The bandits then apparently went to a roadside park and shot and killed Taylor, a Niles, Mich., auto-truck driver.

The body of Taylor was found and his identification was not established until after the killers were captured near Van Wert, some 50 miles away.

Daniels is the son of a Columbus plaster contractor and has a police record dating back to 1941 when he was sentenced to the boys' industrial school at Lancaster for automobile theft.

In 1943, Daniels was sentenced to the reformatory on an unarmed robbery charge in Waverly, in Southern Ohio. He later escaped from an honor camp, was recaptured and taken back to the Mansfield institution from which he was paroled in September, 1947.

West was a former resident of Parkersburg, W. Va. He was arrested three times in Cleveland and finally was sentenced to the reformatory on two counts of grand larceny. He was paroled last March 31.

Officials have theorized that either West or Daniels held a grudge for Niebel from the time they served at Mansfield. Niebel was known as a strict disciplinarian.

West and Daniels were linked definitely to the brutal kidnap-murder of the Niebel family at the time of the Smith slaying near Tiffin last night. They said that, under present regulations, any commercial or private plane can fly at will above Lake Success, and thus have the key center of the world body "at its mercy."

They pointed out that, particularly at Security Council sessions, a top-level target is almost always available for a possible fanatic attempt.

UN Security Chief John Cosgrove described the explosion as very "sharp and loud." Other guards said the blast was "loud—er than a mortar."

Police believe that the explosion may have been caused by a home-made bomb, or might have been a "torpedo" of the type used in mail drops. Cosgrove said he picked up bits of cotton and adhesive tape.

FARMERS along Little Walnut Creek reported fences washed out and were constructing temporary barriers to hold livestock; Frank Grice's large melon patch suffered heavy damage; five feet of water poured into the home of Mrs. Hayes Dill damaging much of the furnishings.

The waters of Hunter's Run, a Hocking River tributary, smashed through West Lancaster doing about a million dollars damage. Damage to state roads and bridges in Fairfield, Washington, Noble and Hocking Counties was set at an additional half-million or more by Highway Director Earl Reeb.

LETTERS To the Editor

Editor, The Herald:

My indignation has been aroused by a councilman's recent statement that he would not blame people for staying away from Circleville because the city does not or cannot provide certain additional services. If that councilman is really interested in getting more people to move to Circleville, suppose he and his colleagues get busy and pass some ordinances to protect the health and property of people who already live here.

Many residents are unaware that if a man owns the site he can erect any sort of building anywhere in Circleville, without the slightest consideration for the health or comfort of the neighbors. This was recently demonstrated in a nice residential section.

Among other things this neighborhood is now plagued by an open fire that burns almost every afternoon, and pours nauseating smoke into nearby homes. Housewives have repeatedly complained that their clean laundry is fouled by the smoke. And the fire creates a serious hazard. Yet the police and fire department are unable to do anything about it, because Circleville has no ordinance against open fires.

When Council provides us with the protection which other cities already have, and which it could provide without additional expense, we tax-payers will be more willing to have our taxes increased to provide additional services.

however, that the Americans had been arrested on March 1947, along the boundary of the Russian and United States sectors, near a Soviet troop billeting area.

The American said they were not directly mistreated but that during their entire detention they had been given only one meal—watery soup.

They said they had strayed into the Russian zone and passed to the rear of two Soviet checkpoints without challenge before being arrested at a third checkpoint.

The provost marshal said that the Russians questioned the Americans about their organization, identification and why they happened to be in the Russian zone.

WHILE THE situation in the "Battle for Berlin" remained generally unchanged, German sources said that Moscow had sent Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky to Germany to take operational charge of Soviet troops in event of a conflict with the Western Powers.

These German sources close to the Soviets said that in event of the outbreak of War Rokossovsky, hero of Stalingrad, would take complete charge of Russian military and political operations in Germany.

They asserted that Herlin Rakovsky Schdarnov, representative of the Communist Politburo, would remain as Rokossovsky's political commissar.

It was added that Marshal Vasily D. Sokolovsky, who remains for the present as Soviet military governor, would be recalled to Russia.

2-YEAR REPORT DETAILED

County Court Business Down About One-Fourth

Pickaway County common pleas court activities in civil and criminal actions have tapered off about a fourth in the last 12 months compared to a similar 1946-47 period.

Clerk of Courts Arthur Wilder, in a two-year report Friday, disclosed that his office logged 390 cases for hearing during the 12-month period ending June 30, 1947.

IN COMPARISON, there were 289 cases docketed in the 12-month period ending June 30, 1946.

The 1946-47 breakdown showed 163 civil cases were carried over from the previous year and 82 more were filed during that period. There were 51 criminal cases held over and an additional 94 criminal cases filed, the report disclosed.

Court action during this time disposed of 62 civil suits and 79 criminal cases.

In the 1947-48 months, a total of 289 cases were on the docket for court disposition. Of these, 183 civil cases had been held over and 106 were filed during the year.

The report also showed 66 criminal cases had been left pending from the 1946-47 period and 77 more cases were filed. This shows that 17 more criminal cases were reported in the first year.

LAST YEAR, the court disposed of 70 civil cases and 65 criminal cases.

During the first 12 months of the report, the court collected $250 in criminal fines compared with $484 last year, Wilder stated.

For the first year of the report, the court collected a total of $10,753.02 from civil and criminal cases. Civil costs amounted to $9,568.07 and $1,184.95 was collected from criminal costs.

Cost collections by the court last year, however, increased somewhat to $17,137.01, Wilder revealed. Of this figure, $15,507.29 was taken in from civil cases and $1,629.72 from criminal cases.

Also the court in 1946-47 showed $139,968.22 on civil judgments, a figure much lower than last year when $459,610.92 was posted in civil judgments. These cases include foreclosures and damage collection suits.

Last year Pickaway County grand jury fees amounted to $483.95; petit jury fees in civil cases cost $954.74; jury fees in criminal cases cost the county $117, making a total of $1,555.64, the clerk of courts reported.

12-15 Prefab Homes To Be Built By Local Man In City's North End

A new subdivision featuring postwar prefabricated homes was being erected immediately north of Circleville city limits this week.

Chester Blue, who is head of the new subdivision, said two houses are being put together there, one a 24x48 foot structure and the other 24x30 feet.

The new buildings are at the extension of Atwater avenue just past the city limits. They are to be 12 to 15 of the homes, Blue said.

Miss Ruth Bogard is visiting this week with her grandmother Bogard of Mt. Sterling.

Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Crites and children were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Perry and daughter, Rebecca of Frankfort.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kern and daughter Carol Lynn of Jackson Township were Thursday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Van Meter Hulse and son Eldon.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Speakman of Columbus and Mr. and Mrs. Erceel Speakman picnicked Sunday near Columbus.

Benton Patterson was admitted Tuesday to University hospital, Columbus for observation.

Blue said there are 37 different floor plans offered for the prefabricated structures, but that only one item would be constant-automatic heating plants.

BLUE SAID also he will finish one of the buildings completely within three or four weeks and leave the other in process of construction so comparison can be made. An open showing of the new home is planned when completed.

A major feature of the prefabs according to Blue, is the rapidity with which can be assembled.

Blue said the target of the two structures now under construction at the site was started Monday, and that the building is under roof now, although work was called off once because of rain.

"The houses I am building are precision-built, and will be practically indistinguishable from the house constructed in ordinary fashion," Blue declares.

Landlord Hit
By Big Suit

CINCINNATI, July 23—A Cincinnati couple filed separate suits for $10,000 each in common pleas court today against their landlord.

Mr. and Mrs. Duard Hamilton of Mount Auburn charged that Landlord Carl Radabaugh, who lived in the same building, installed microphones to listen to confidential, personal and secret family relations.

Radabaugh did this, the defendants charged, "with the low, mean, vulgar, filthy, vicious and malicious intent to destroy the quiet and tranquility of domestic happiness."

In 1947, seven disasters occurred in the United States that caused 50 or more deaths. The Texas City explosion was the largest, with approximately 550 lives lost.

The program will conclude when an eight-truck caravan carrying the 8,000 food boxes, leaves the Sidney courthouse for New York City. There the contributions of the Western Ohio community will be placed aboard a ship for Bremen, Germany.

12-15 Prefab Homes To Be Built
By Local Man In City's North End

A new subdivision featuring postwar prefabricated homes was being erected immediately north of Circleville city limits this week.

Chester Blue, who is head of the new subdivision, said two houses are being put together there, one a 24x48 foot structure and the other 24x36 feet.

The new buildings are at the extension of Atwater avenue just past the city limits. They are to be 12 to 15 of the homes, Blue said.

Miss Ruth Bogard is visiting this week with her grandmother Bogard of Mt. Sterling.

Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Crites and children were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Perry and daughter, Rebecca of Frankfort.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kern and daughter Carol Lynn of Jackson Township were Thursday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Van Meter Hulse and son Eldon.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Speakman of Columbus and Mr. and Mrs. Ercel Speakman picnicked Sunday near Columbus.

Benton Patterson was admitted Tuesday to University hospital, Columbus for observation.

Blue said there are 37 different floor plans offered for the prefabricated structures, but that only one item would be constant-automatic heating plants.

BLUE SAID also he will finish one of the buildings completely within three or four weeks and leave the other in process of construction so comparison can be made. An open showing of the new home is planned when completed.

A major feature of the prefabs according to Blue, is the rapidity with which can be assembled.

Blue said the larger of the two structures now under construction at the site was started Monday, and that the building is under roof now, although work was called off once because of rain.

"The houses I am building are precision-built, and will be practically indistinguishable from the house constructed in ordinary fashion," Blue declares.

A New Model of a Famous Tractor

Oliver begins its second century with the introduction of a new fleet of quality farm tractors—including the new 2-3 plow "77", a tractor with advanced farm features that make field work faster and more efficient than ever.

The smooth, brisk valve-in-head engine of the "77" is a six—and you have a choice of three types for the fuel you prefer: high compression for gasoline, "KD" for tractor fuels, and a diesel that will be available later.

The "77" will set a new performance mark in the operation of power take-off machines with its direct drive unit... a new economy record with its 6-forward-speed transmission in the Oil Miser case, Fuel Miser governor, and the basic interchangeability of Oliver's full line of tractor-mounted tools with all other new Row Crop models. Wheels on Row Crop models are interchangeable, too—with a choice of cast iron or stamped steel.

One of the models in the new Oliver fleet is sure to fit your acreage and farming practices. Available in Row Crop, Standard, Row Crop with Adjustable Front Axle or Single Front Wheel. Drop in next time you're in town.

CANADIAN WHITE HOUSE

WILLIAM Lyon Mackenzie King, prime minister of Canada, who is now in his last term after long and able service to the dominion, has been quoted as indignantly denying that he said "the pay of the prime minister ought to be $50,000 a year." On the other hand, perhaps he did say that $50,000 would not be too much to support a Canadian prime minister in the proper style. His own emoluments, including salary, session indemnities and other perquisites, come to about $23,000 a year. He is able to maintain the dignity of the office, he says, because Lady Laurier, widow of Sir Wilfred Laurier, long a prime minister, bequeathed him Laurier House, where he lives, and private gifts have helped to furnish and keep it up.

Mackenzie King would like to see the dominion establish a suitable residence for prime ministers. What he suggests is a sort of Canadian White House. Americans are inclined to hope he soon finds his wish fulfilled. While the growth of democracy makes less and less difference in way of living between the head of a state and the average citizen, the fact remains that certain duties and necessities befall a president or prime minister which require a dwelling of ample size and equipment for his use.

The head of a state represents his people. In him are concentrated tasks and attributes which require adequate provision.

Congress might well take a little thought along this line in providing for our own diplomatic corps abroad. Private wealth ought not to be necessary for an ambassador.

SPECIAL SESSION

IF NOTHING more than legislative problems were to be considered, the decision of the President to call a special session of Congress would be understandable enough. Unquestionably the Congress, when it hurried away from Washington to attend the national political conventions, left much important work undone.

But there are other elements in the situation. This is hotly contested election year. A Republican Congress, with most members seeking re-election this fall, is called back in campaign time to work with a Democratic President, also seeking re-election. The circumstances do not augur well for sound legislation.

The best thing to hope for is that not too many hasty, ill-conceived and inadequately studied measures will be jammed through in the Washington summer heat.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

By what is euphemistically called "civil rights" in this campaign is meant the Negro question. And let us call it that from here on. Since the Civil War, the Negro question has been a major American problem inadequately discussed and considered except by Southerners who had to live with it and in recent years by the Communists and their fellow-travelers and competing liberals who hope to garner votes out of it.

Under our Constitution and within the sanctions of moral law, the legal equality of Negroes and whites can not be questioned. Historically and traditionally, the question is not so simple either in the North or the South. Those Northern Democrats who make such a terrific do-do about racial discrimination in the South are generally liars—they will not live in Negro areas in their cities; they do not entertain Negroes in their homes; they do not hire Negro secretaries or clerks, except political ones, which is part of the vote-getting technique; they do not encourage association between their children and Negro children.

In a word, none of them practice in their private lives what they preach for others. It is a simple matter for a resident of Minnesota or Wisconsin to grow powerfully indignant about a problem that does not face him but that does face a citizen of Alabama or Mississippi. Minnesota's Negro population, according to the 1940 census, was 9,928; Wisconsin's, 12,158; Alabama's, 983,290; Mississippi's, 1,074,578.

If the Civil War had not ended in the reconstruction era, during which Thaddeus Stevens created an unassimilable minority for political advantage, we should perhaps today not be facing this problem as the principal campaign issue of 1948. Perhaps had Abraham Lincoln not been assassinated, the emancipated Negro slave would have been brought into American life without malice, with charity for all.

But that did not happen. Instead the Northern carpetbagger and his Negro associates left in the South a heritage of bitterness which has continued to the present time. Franklin D. Roosevelt tried to solve this problem by exporting Negroes from the South to the North, placing them on relief rolls and forcing them into industrial enterprises on a quota basis. Thus, in many Northern and Western areas, the Negro population increased startlingly.

The Northerners met the problems by segregating Negroes into ghettos. Make no mistake about that: in the North, the Negro is as segregated as in the South, in spite of the lies Northern politicians tell. Harlem is a Negro ghetto; the Bedford district of Brooklyn is a Negro ghetto; the south side of Chicago is a Negro ghetto.

Were that the entire story, it would be little more than an appeal for the Irish, the Jewish, or the Italian vote. But this Negro question is pitched on a high emotional level and can result in riots and death. It requires thoughtful and considerate handling.

Engineers say the leaning tower of Pisa will collapse within 400 years, offering at long last hope for vindication of the principle of standing up straight.

You never quite know when a politician's goose is cooked—if it is.

THE STRONGEST ANSWER

WE ALL KNOW that we ought to bid with a hand which is utterly worthless in either high cards or distributional values in responding to an informative or takeout double across the table from us. We also know that if we have a fair amount of strength we should make the response more than minimum to show that our holding added to that of a doubler should produce a game. Now for the top extreme. What is the way to show at once that we hold an extremely good hand across from him? By bidding the opponent's suit.

Yes, North had passed on his first turn, as he should have. But that was far from a sound excuse for South to pass the 4-Hearts bid. North had made on his second turn a call which is so strong that it is very seldom heard at any bridge table when he bid the opponent's suit. It was really a very fine bid. He knew from the double that South should be ready for either major, and he himself had a marvelous fit for either, plus the ace of one and a complete blank in one minor. Even his diamond length figured to be of value, making it likely his partner was extremely short in the suit.

Then North, as soon as he heard that South's main suit was hearts, jumped all the way to game in it. If South had been drawing proper inferences from that bidding, he could have felt certain of slam, and could have probed for it by whatever means he preferred or else bid small slam at once.

It is easy to see that grand slam is in the cards if South plays West for the spade Q as he should in view of the fact that East's bid was pretty well shown up as a psychic nuisance bid. As it developed, South did not even have to guess the spade suit since West led the club A. When it was ruffed in the dummy, South had two good clubs to discard spades and so walked home with the unbid grand slam.

"It's going to be light for quite a while," Andrew said then. "And I thought those of you who were here might like to go through the house now, and see it while we

CHAPTER FORTY-SEVEN

ANDREW said importantly, ticking the items off on his fingers, "I have hamburgers, hot dogs, bacon (of a sort), the tag end of a ham, and some sort of sausage which I haven't had the courage to investigate personally."

"Andrew Paulson!" Helen cried, aghast. "What did you use on the butchers? Their own cleavers?"

"Probably a scissors lock and a judicious thumb in the eye," Alec said, brightening. "Do you really mean it? Golly, now I'll be wasting time by trying to decide which one I want, and everybody will get ahead of me. Where is it?"

"I've been accumulating this meat for days and days. I bought a little here and there, and stored it in Mrs. Potts' refrigerator, and got the promise of some more—by bribery, not force, I'd have you know, Alec—and the bacon I acquired by sheer strength of personality."

Mrs. Woodford (and husband) arrived. Andrew turned to greet them, and found the Rolands coming up from the street, bowed under heavy burdens. "Good Lord!" he cried. "We can't eat that much corn relish!"

Cecile shook her head at him. "It's a good thing George is in your confidence, or I don't know what would have happened to this party. Do you know you forgot all about a dessert?"

Andrew groaned, and clasped his head in both hands. "So I did! I'll run down town right now and bring back some ice cream and some—some—"

"Some cake?" they chorused.

"Some—cake?" It was a question.

"There isn't a thing left at the bakery—I looked, just so that I could make you miserable by telling you," George said. "But what do you think all this truck is?"

"Ice cream?" Andrew said hopefully, going forward to relieve George of his bundles.

"And cake!" Cecile said proudly. "The little woman spent the entire afternoon, I'll have you know," George informed them, "bowed over the stove."

"Oh, good!" Mrs. Woodford exclaimed. "If they're Cecile's cakes, they'll be delicious! I didn't know Andrew would forget the dessert, but I did think of bringing some mints. Where are they, Huntley?"

"In your left hand," her husband answered with a weary twinkle.

"So they are! I am getting so absent-minded. Give me a little longer, and I'll forget who I am! You know, I think this is a wonderful idea, Andrew. It's just cool enough to enjoy wearing wool and gathering around a fire. But the middle of September can be awfully cold when the sun goes down, and I hope everybody brought plenty of wraps."

"It's going to be light for quite a while," Andrew said then. "And I thought those of you who were here might like to go through the house now, and see it while we wait for the others and I get into my stride as chef."

"I'd love it! Helen, come with me, and tell me where the steps are—I have on my first bifocals, and I'm still walking around like a horse with a check-rein on . . . I do like small houses. Sometimes I say to Huntley, 'Why don't we live in that huge mausoleum we live in and find something cosy and easy to care for . . .'"

Her voice died away, and Huntley Woodford chuckled. "Can you see her in a small house?" he asked Andrew. "She'd have the walls bulged out and the roof pushed off the first day . . . By the way, I hear you've got the rest of the loan you wanted. Where are you going to place the next house?"

Andrew grinned. "Now that I have some money to work with, I'll be building several at a time," he said. "It's cheaper that way, you know."

Woodford gazed around him with approval. "You've got a handsome setting here, Delacourt. And I'll never get over my surprise that Eph let you have it for so little. I always thought—"

But Andrew interrupted him. He said, with something like a sigh of relief, "What did you call me, sir?"

"Delacourt," Woodford said calmly. "I've been meaning to for some time, but I thought you'd want to get established first."

"You're right. And it's time I let my friends know my real name," Andrew said. "You've no idea what a satisfaction it is to know that they are my friends—the friends of Andrew Paulson."

Then, as if he had just thought of it, he said, "How did you find out?"

"It was at your housewarming," Woodford said with a reminiscent smile. "Bigelow—I gather he had been your valet or butler, or something of the sort—called you 'Mr. Paul,' and I got curious. I recalled about when you had come to town, and I looked in the back files of our Boston papers—Mrs. Woodford always keeps them for at least six months. It's a fire hazard, but she claims she might want to clip something—and I had no trouble discovering that Paul Andrew Delacourt had disappeared in early March."

The pictures fit you, and the biographical sketch mentioned your architectural training. It was as easy as that."

"Ogden Sayre guessed, too," Andrew admitted. "I suppose I'm lucky that more people didn't. But I've had a—very revealing experience these six months as Andy Paulson. I wouldn't give it up for anything."

"What wouldn't you give up?" Joan said behind him and he whirled to greet her and her mother, his eyes shining.

"The chance to eat those pancakes you've been boasting about. It's important for me to find out if you're a really good cook . . . Don't forget I've been boarding with Mrs. Potts!"

Joan blushed, and her mother laughed outright. "Well, I taught her, but I think she needs practice."

"The line forms on the right," Andrew said, "and I'm first!"

Everyone else now arrived in a group. The Sayres and Carol and her friend, Gloria and Ellery, trailing Mrs. Potts and Eph. Emma Potts was scolding her child. "More candy! I just gave you a quarter yesterday. What did you spend it on?"

"Oh, ma, how can I tell? It—it just went!"

Mrs. Potts stood still and put her arms akimbo. "Gloria, I won't have you turning into a spend-thrift! You're getting so a penny saved is sharper than a serpent's tooth."

Eph looked over at Andrew and winked with the whole side of his face. "Reminds me of a teller who inherited a thousand dollars and lost it all in one poker game. Folks used to call him a fool, but I say, Where there's a will, let the chips fall where they may!"

"You keep still!" Emma Potts said with a horrified glance toward Mrs. McClure, and Eph meekly subsided. "Andy, we've brought Joe along, but we left him shut up in the car. Do you think it would be safe to let him out?"

"Why, of course," Andrew said, surprised into asking. "But how did you happen to bring him in the first place?" He couldn't imagine Mrs. Potts sharing the close confines of a car with a cat—even Joe.

"Oh," she said, with an off-hand air, "I thought he looked lonesome, staying home all by himself, so I invited him."

"Fact is," Eph inserted, "she was probably lonesome for the cat."

Mrs. Potts ignored this. "Gloria," she said, "go make yourself useful."

"But what'll I do, Ma?" Gloria was loath to leave her fascinated inspection of the new house.

"Set things out," her mother said with some asperity. "Unpack the victuals, and get some water from the neighbor's for Joan's bath. If she remembered to bring it, it'll be the first time that happened at a picnic in the memory of man!"

Joan's hand went to her mouth with a ludicrous gesture. "I did forget it!" she cried. "I brought the milk and eggs, but I forgot the water!"

"No need to worry; it's turned on here. Knapp saw to that several days ago," Andrew said proudly. He was loving every bit of this party—the scurrying around, the cries of misgiving and delight, the ecstatic shouts and laughter from inside the house.

But at last things got organized. The fire died to the proper glow, the hamburgers and hot dogs and the bacon were broiled to each one's individual taste. The grease dropped upon the bright coals with an appetizing hiss.

A. JAMES & SONS, Inc.

By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—A couple of months ago, one of the daily Manhattan columnists, suffering possibly from ennui or a hangover, accepted a press agent's word that the clock atop the Metropolitan Life Insurance company was the largest in the world.

This is a considerable misstatement of fact and the position in which the columnist found himself is one I fearfully expect to find myself any day, since I also suffer from occasional ennui and hangovers, and I also accept press agents' statements as gospel truth.

The cold, clear fact is that the Colgate clock, just across the Hudson river in Jersey City, is the largest in the world, a fact which the press agent for THAT clock promptly howled indignantly to the world.

This clock, which is the official timepiece for the tens of thousands of lost souls who take the ferries from New Jersey to New York and back each morning and night, is 50 feet in diameter, as contrasted to a mere 26½ feet for the Metropolitan timepiece.

The thing about a 50-foot clock that interested me was—who in the name of sweet heaven keeps it wound? I found out by the simple procedure of picking up the telephone and saying "Yes, Agnes, I'll talk to him now," thus ending a three-day vigil by the indignant press agent who had been parked night and day by his phone like someone trying to buy the first bleacher ticket to the World Series.

HAROLD J. SCHEER WINDS THIS MONSTROSITY. He is a man of 55 who has worked for that certain soap company since 1919, or ever since he honorably severed connections with the Seventy-Sixth Infantry.

Scheer has a married daughter who takes a dim view of his occupation. "A lot of good it does us," she comments. "Dad takes care of the world's biggest clock and more than 50 smaller ones, but mother has to wind the one at home."

Actually, there is no real winding of the clock because it operates on power furnished by 28 batteries which recharge automatically. However, Mr. Scheer is the custodian of it, and of all the other clocks in the plant, and he checks things. You know—checks things.

He has an electrician-assistant named Norman Reeves who replaces the electric bulbs on the face and hands, and he swings out 12 stories above the cobbly streets of Jersey City to accomplish this precarious task.

Scheer worked, from 1932 to 1939, under a man named George Steele, and he tells an interesting story about Mr. Steele. Mr. Steele loved clocks, with that hipped passion that some men have for stuff like that, but he had a dislike of the big one. On Nov. 1, 1939, he died atop a ladder in the plant, and every clock in the joint stopped—except the big one. Presumably, the dislike was mutual.

THIS MAMMOTH WRISTWATCH WAS DESIGNED by the late Warren Davey and was set in motion officially Dec. 1, 1924. It has an area of 1,963 square feet, which means nothing to me

CANADIAN WHITE HOUSE

WILLIAM Lyon Mackenzie King, prime minister of Canada, who is now in his last term after long and able service to the dominion, has been quoted as indignantly denying that he said "the pay of the prime minister ought to be $50,000 a year." On the other hand, perhaps he did say that $50,000 would not be too much to support a Canadian prime minister in the proper style. His own emoluments, including salary, session indemnities and other perquisites, come to about $23,000 a year. He is able to maintain the dignity of the office, he says, because Lady Laurier, widow of Sir Wilfred Laurier, long a prime minister, bequeathed him Laurier House, where he lives, and private gifts have helped to furnish and keep it up.

Mackenzie King would like to see the dominion establish a suitable residence for prime ministers. What he suggests is a sort of Canadian White House. Americans are inclined to hope he soon finds his wish fulfilled. While the growth of democracy makes less and less difference in way of living between the head of a state and the average citizen, the fact remains that certain duties and necessities befall a president or prime minister which require a dwelling of ample size and equipment for his use.

The head of a state represents his people. In him are concentrated tasks and attributes which require adequate provision.

Congress might well take a little thought along this line in providing for our own diplomatic corps abroad. Private wealth ought not to be necessary for an ambassador.

SPECIAL SESSION

IF NOTHING more than legislative problems were to be considered, the decision of the President to call a special session of Congress would be understandable enough. Unquestionably the Congress, when it hurried away from Washington to attend the national political conventions, left much important work undone.

But there are other elements in the situation. This is hotly contested election year. A Republican Congress, with most members seeking re-election this fall, is called back in campaign time to work with a Democratic President, also seeking re-election. The circumstances do not augur well for sound legislation.

The best thing to hope for is that not too many hasty, ill-conceived and inadequately studied measures will be jammed through in the Washington summer heat.

George E. Sokolsky

These Days

By what is euphemistically called "civil rights" in this campaign is meant the Negro question. And let us call it that from here on. Since the Civil War, the Negro question has been a major American problem inadequately discussed and considered except by Southerners who had to live with it and in recent years by the Communists and their fellow-travelers and competing liberals who hope to garner votes out of it.

Under our Constitution and within the sanctions of moral law, the legal equality of Negroes and whites can not be questioned. Historically and traditionally, the question is not so simple either in the North or the South. Those Northern Democrats who make such a terrific to-do about racial discrimination in the South are generally liars—they will not live in Negro areas in their cities; they do not entertain Negroes in their homes; they do not hire Negro secretaries or clerks, except political ones, which is part of the vote-getting technique; they do not encourage association between their children and Negro children.

In a word, none of them practice in their private lives what they preach for others. It is a simple matter for a resident of Minnesota or Wisconsin to grow powerfully indignant about a problem that does not face him but that does face a citizen of Alabama or Mississippi. Minnesota's Negro population, according to the 1940 census, was 9,928; Wisconsin's, 12,158; Alabama's, 983,290; Mississippi's, 1,074,578.

If the Civil War had not ended in the reconstruction era, during which Thaddeus Stevens created an unassimilable minority for political advantage, we should perhaps today not be facing this problem as the principal campaign issue of 1948. Perhaps had Abraham Lincoln not been assassinated, the emancipated Negro slave would have been brought into American life without malice, with charity for all.

But that did not happen. Instead the Northern carpetbagger and his Negro associates left in the South a heritage of bitterness which has continued to the present time. Franklin D. Roosevelt tried to solve this problem by exporting Negroes from the South to the North, placing them on relief rolls and forcing them into industrial enterprises on a quota basis. Thus, in many Northern and Western areas, the Negro population increased startlingly.

The Northerners met the problems by segregating Negroes into ghettos. Make no mistake about that: in the North, the Negro is as segregated as in the South, in spite of the lies Northern politicians tell. Harlem is a Negro ghetto; the Bedford district of Brooklyn is a Negro ghetto; the south side of Chicago is a Negro ghetto.

Were that the entire story, it would be little more than an appeal for the Irish, the Jewish, or the Italian vote. But this Negro question is pitched on a high emotional level and can result in riots and death. It requires thoughtful and considerate handling.

Engineers say the leaning tower of Pisa will collapse within 400 years, offering at long last hope for vindication of the principle of standing up straight.

You never quite know when a politician's goose is cooked—if it is.

THE STRONGEST ANSWER

WE ALL KNOW that we ought to bid with a hand which is utterly worthless in either high cards or distributional values in responding to an informative or takeout double across the table from us. We also know that if we have a fair amount of strength we should make the response more than minimum to show that our holding added to that of a doubler should produce a game. Now for the top extreme. What is the way to show at once that we hold an extremely good hand across from him? By bidding the opponent's suit.

Yes, North had passed on his first turn, as he should have. But that was far from a sound excuse for South to pass the 4-Hearts bid. North had made on his second turn a call which is so strong that it is very seldom heard at any bridge table when he bid the opponent's suit. It was really a very fine bid. He knew from the double that South should be ready for either major, and he himself had a marvelous fit for either, plus the ace of one and a complete blank in one minor. Even his diamond length figured to be of value, making it likely his partner was extremely short in the suit.

Then North, as soon as he heard that South's main suit was hearts, jumped all the way to game in it. If South had been drawing proper inferences from that bidding, he could have felt certain of slam, and could have probed for it by whatever means he preferred or else bid small slam at once.

It is easy to see that grand slam is in the cards if South plays West for the spade Q as he should in view of the fact that East's bid was pretty well shown up as a psychic nuisance bid. As it developed, South did not even have to guess the spade suit since West led the club A. When it was ruffed in the dummy, South had two good clubs to discard spades and so walked home with the unbid grand slam.

CHAPTER FORTY-SEVEN

ANDREW said importantly, ticking the items off on his fingers, "I have hamburgers, hot dogs, bacon (of a sort), the tag end of a ham, and some sort of sausage which I haven't had the courage to investigate personally."

"Andrew Paulson!" Helen cried, aghast. "What do you use on the butchers? Their own cleavers?"

"Probably a scalars lock and a judicious thumb in the eye," Alec said, brightening. "Do you really mean it? Golly, now I'll be waiting time by trying to decide which one I want, and everybody will get ahead of me. Where is it?"

"I've been accumulating this meat for days and days. I bought a little here and there, and stored it in Mrs. Potts' refrigerator, and got the promise of some more—by bribery, not force, I'd have you know, Alec—and the bacon I acquired by sheer strength of personality."

Mrs. Woodford (and husband) arrived. Andrew turned to greet them, and found the Rolands coming up from the street, bowed under heavy burdens. "Good Lord!" he cried. "We can't eat that much corn relish!"

Cecile shook her head at him. "It's a good thing George is in your confidence, or I don't know what would have happened to this party. Do you know you forgot all about a dessert?"

Andrew groaned, and clasped his head in both hands. "So I did! I'll run down town right now and bring back some ice cream and some—some—"

"Some what?" they chorused.

"Some—cake?" It was a question.

"There isn't a thing left at the bakery—I looked, just so that I could make you miserable by telling you," George said. "But what do you think all this truck is?"

"Ice cream?" Andrew said hopefully, going forward to relieve George of his bundles.

"And cake!" Cecile said proudly. "The little woman spent the entire afternoon, I'll have you know," George informed them, "bowed over the stove."

"Oh, good!" Mrs. Woodford exclaimed. "If they're Cecile's cakes, they'll be delicious! I didn't know Andrew would forget the dessert, but I did think of bringing some mints. Where are they, Huntley?"

"In your left hand," her husband answered with a weary twinkle. "So they are! I am getting so absent-minded. Give me a little longer, and I'll forget who I am! You know, I think this is a wonderful idea, Andrew. It's just cool enough to enjoy wearing wool and gathering around a fire. But the middle of September can be awfully cold when the sun goes down, and I hope everybody brought plenty of wraps."

"It's going to be light for quite a while," Andrew said then. "And I thought those of you who were here might like to go through the house now, and see it while we wait for the others and I get into my stride as chef."

"I'd love it! Helen, come with me, and tell me where the steps are—I have on my first bifocals, and I'm still walking around like a horse with a check-rein on. . . . I do like small houses. Sometimes I say to Huntley, 'Why don't we give up that huge mausoleum we live in and find something cosy and easy to care for. . . .'"

Her voice died away, and Huntley Woodford chuckled. "Can you see her in a small house?" he asked Andrew. "She'd have the walls bulged out and the roof pushed off the first day. . . . By the way, I hear you've got the rest of the loan you wanted. Where are you going to place the next house?"

Andrew grinned. "Now that I have some money to work with, I'll be building several at a time," he said. "It's cheaper that way, you know."

Woodford gazed around him with approval. "You've got a handsome setting here, Delacourt. And I'll never get over my surprise that Eph let you have it for so little. I always thought—"

But Andrew interrupted him. He said, with something like a sigh of relief, "What did you call me, sir?"

"Delacourt," Woodford said calmly. "I've been meaning to for some time, but I thought you'd want to get established first."

"You're right. And it's time I let my friends know my real name," Andrew said. "You've no idea what a satisfaction it is to know that they are my friends—the friends of Andrew Paulson."

Then curiosity got the better of him. "How did you find out?"

"It was at your housewarming," Woodford said with a reminiscent smile. "Higelow—I gather he had been your valet or butler, or something of the sort—called you 'Mr. Paul,' and I got curious. I recalled about when you had come to town, and I looked in the back files of our Boston papers—Mrs. Woodford always keeps them for at least six months. It's a fire hazard, but she claims she might want to clip something—and I had no trouble discovering that Paul Andrew Delacourt had disappeared in early March. The pictures fit you, and the biographical sketch mentioned your architectural training. It was as easy as that."

"Ogden Sayre guessed, too," Andrew admitted. "I suppose I'm lucky that more people didn't. But I'm glad neither of you mentioned it. I've had a very revealing experience these six months as Andy Paulson. I wouldn't give it up for anything."

"What wouldn't you give up?" Joan said behind him and he whirled to greet her and her mother, his eyes shining.

"The chance to eat those pancakes you've been boasting about. It's important for me to find out if you're a really good cook. . . . Don't forget I've been boarding with Mrs. Potts!"

Joan blushed, and her mother laughed outright. "Well, I taught her, but I think she needs practice."

"The line forms on the right," Andrew said, "and I'm first!"

Everyone else now arrived in a group. The Sayres and Carol and her friend, Gloria and Ellery, trailing Mrs. Potts and Eph. Emma Potts was scolding her child. "More candy! I just gave you a quarter yesterday. What did you spend it on?"

"Oh, ma, how can I tell? It—it just went!"

Mrs. Potts stood still and put her arms akimbo. "Gloria, I won't have you turning into a spend-thrift! You're getting so penny saved is sharper than a serpent's tooth."

Eph looked over at Andrew and winked with the whole side of his face. "Reminds me of a fellow who inherited a thousand dollars and lost it all in one poker game. Folks used to call him a fool, but I say, where there's a will, let the chips fall where they may!"

"You keep still!" Emma Potts said with a horrified glance toward Mrs. McClure, and Eph meekly subsided. "Andy, we've brought Joe along, but we left him shut up in the car. Do you think it would be safe to let him out?"

"Why, of course," Andrew said, surprised into asking. "But how did you happen to bring him in the first place?" He couldn't imagine Mrs. Potts sharing the close confines of a car with a cat—even Joe.

"Oh," she said, with an off-hand air, "I thought he looked lonesome, staying home all by himself, so I invited him."

"Fact is," Eph inserted, "she was probably lonesome for the cat."

Mrs. Potts ignored this. "Gloria," she said, "go make yourself useful."

"But what'll I do, Ma?" Gloria was loath to leave her fascinated inspection of the new house.

"Set things out," her mother said with some asperity. "Unpack the victuals, and get some water from the neighbor's for Joan's batter. If she remembered to bring it, it'll be the first time that happened at a picnic in the memory of man!"

Joan's hand went to her mouth with a ludicrous gesture. "I did forget it!" she cried. "I brought the milk and eggs, but I forgot the water!"

"No need to worry; it's turned on here. Knapp saw to that several days ago," Andrew said proudly. He was loving every bit of this party—the scurrying around, the cries of misgiving and delight, the ecstatic shouts and laughter from inside the house.

But at last things got organized. The fire died to the proper glow, the hamburgers and hot dogs and the bacon were broiled to each one's individual taste. The grease dropped upon the bright coals with an appetizing hiss.

NEW YORK—A couple of months ago, one of the daily Manhattan columnists, suffering possibly from ennui or a hangover, accepted a press agent's word that the clock atop the Metropolitan Life Insurance company was the largest in the world.

This is a considerable misstatement of fact and the position in which the columnist found himself is one I fearfully expect to find myself any day, since I also suffer from occasional ennui and hangovers, and I also accept press agents' statements as gospel truth.

The cold, clear fact is that the Colgate clock, just across the Hudson river in Jersey City, is the largest in the world, a fact which the press agent for THAT clock promptly howled indignantly to the world.

This clock, which is the official timepiece for the tens of thousands of lost souls who take the ferries from New Jersey to New York and back each morning and night, is 50 feet in diameter, as contrasted to a mere 26½ feet for the Metropolitan timepiece.

The thing about a 50-foot clock that interested me was—who in the name of sweet heaven keeps it wound? I found out by the simple procedure of picking up the telephone and saying "Yes, Agnes, I'll talk to him now," thus ending a three-day vigil by the indignant press agent who had been parked night and day by his phone like someone trying to buy the first bleacher ticket to the World Series.

Tempt Appetites To Whet Energy

What is wanted on the lunch-eon or dinner table these hot humid days is food that is both cool and satisfying.

The trouble with hot weather eating is that in the heat folks don't realize they're hungry. In their eagerness for only the cooling things, they neglect foods that have substantial energy value. People become further languid when they just piece on knick-knacks instead of a balanced meal.

Suggestions have been made for main dishes suited to Summer menus, that are easily prepared, even the day before, for eye appeal and nourishing energy building foods.

A molded loaf, shrimp stars in another, chicken in another, ham-and-cheese for a third dish is suggested.

Do not leave your camera in the glove compartment of your car. The heat has ruined many feet of good film.

If you dislike cleaning the oven broiler every time you cook for only a few people, let a skillet be the substitute. Put a wire cake rack in a large skillet, place the meat on the rack and insert the skillet under the flame. All drippings will be in the skillet.

Tempt Appetites To Whet Energy

What is wanted on the luncheon or dinner table these hot humid days is food that is both cool and satisfying.

The trouble with hot weather eating is that in the heat folks don't realize they're hungry. In their eagerness for only the cooling things, they neglect foods that have substantial energy value. People become further languid when they just piece on knick-knacks instead of a balanced meal.

Suggestions have been made for main dishes suited to Summer menus, that are easily prepared, even the day before, for eye appeal and nourishing energy building foods.

A molded loaf, shrimp stars in another, chicken in another, ham-and-cheese for a third dish is suggested.

There really are very few things that are likely to go wrong with an electric range. If any do happen to your range, however, do not try to remedy it yourself. Call an experienced range service man. More especially, do not tinker with thermostatic controls.

Do not leave your camera in the glove compartment of your car. The heat has ruined many feet of good film.

If you dislike cleaning the oven broiler every time you cook for only a few people, let a skillet be the substitute. Put a wire cake rack in a large skillet, place the meat on the rack and insert the skillet under the flame. All drippings will be in the skillet.

Better rinse out soiled window curtains in several cool waters or allow to soak for awhile before washing them. The dust and grit will then be loosened, and there is no need for hard scrubbing.

Brains Back Of Record Corn Yield

Hybrid Research Given Credit

COLUMBUS, July 23—If government crop reports predicting the biggest U. S. corn crop in history are made good by favorable weather up to harvest time, this great contribution to world welfare must be partly credited to research workers in agriculture.

Farm management specialists at Ohio State university say the 1948 corn crop is being grown on the second smallest corn acreage planted by farmers in the past 50 years.

Getting a record crop off nearly the smallest corn acreage has been made possible by use of hybrid seed corn, liberal use of fertilizers, and better weed control through power machinery and applications of 2-4-D. The farm management specialists say high production per acre is one of the best ways of cutting the cost of production for each bushel of produce.

The big share of the prospective increase in corn production per acre must be credited to the use of hybrid seed.

OHIO CORN yields have been raised 15 percent or better since hybrid seed has been planted on most of the corn acreage in the state. Government officials say 75 percent of the U. S. 1948 acreage is hybrid corn, and the Ohio fields contain more than 90 percent hybrids.

Ohio State university agronomists explain that hybrid corn is the end product of years of discouraging work by plant breeders. Those men started by selecting superior plants of open pollinated corn and then kept the lines pure by using only pollen from those plants to establish pure lines. Years of that work produced groups of wizened plants that bore bunnies of corn that made farmers laugh.

The pure lines themselves were worthless for commercial production; but, when two different pure lines were planted side by side and one line was permitted to pollinate the other, seed was produced which would outyield any open pollinated corn.

The ground planted with hybrid seed jumped by millions and tens of millions of acres every year after farmers saw hybrids growing alongside open pollinated corn.

Hybrid seed corn costs more than open pollinated seed that a farmer saved from his own crop, because the hybrid seed supply is renewed each year by purchase from seed growers.

However, the extra seed cost per acre for corn is a minor item in the total cost of corn production when the seed may add from five to 25 bushels per acre to the average yield.

Free Elections To Get Airing

CLEVELAND, July 23—"Free and fair government elections" will be the topic under discussion here tomorrow at a conference of 12 unofficial delegates from foreign countries as well as American states.

The conference, sponsored by the World Citizenship Movement, is the first session to be held in co-operation with the Council on World Affairs.

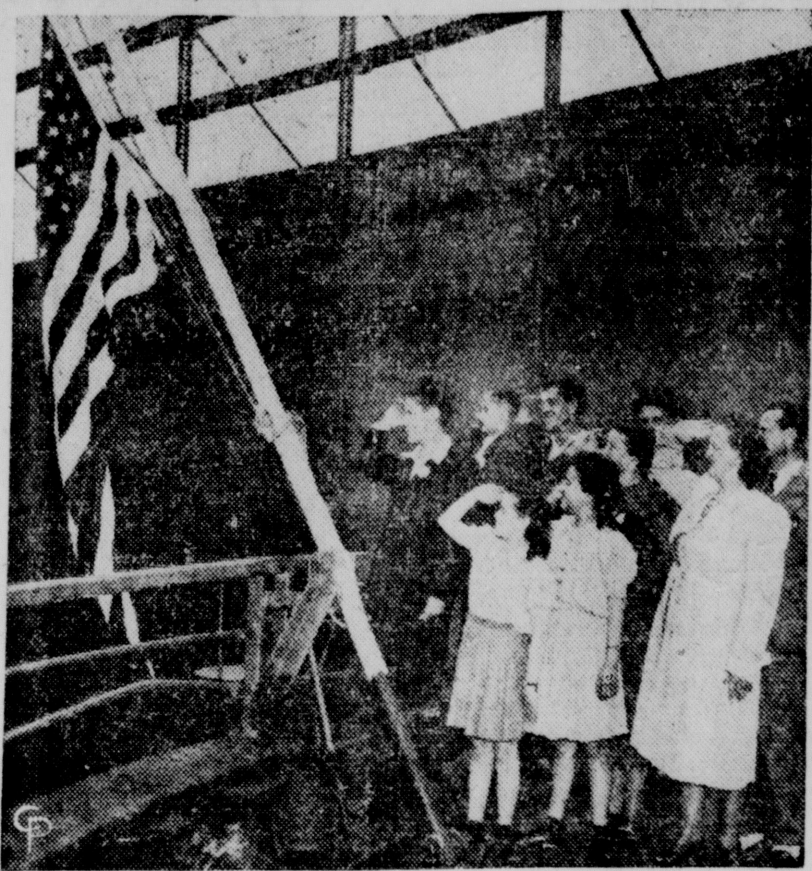

The group will discuss the value of free elections, what commitments have been made by individual nations the last few years to guarantee such elections, and how far these commitments have been met.

WASHINGTON, July 23—Selective Service officials indicated today that only a small fraction of the youths who register for the new draft will be called for duty with the armed forces.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, said he does not expect any call for men from the Army, chief beneficiary of the draft, until after registration is complete. He refused to estimate how many men the first call would include. But he did say it was unlikely that any men would be inducted before Oct. 1.

Plucky Bucky Travels 45 Miles To Home

When Mrs. George Fissell of North Pickaway street let her dog, Bucky, out of her Buckeye Lake cabin last week for his morning stroll, she didn't realize it would be a 45-mile extended tour.

However, the tan and white shepherd with the heart of an infantryman and legs of Olympic runner, nearly lost his life by following his instinct.

Bucky's 45-mile hike bounding fences, fording streams and crossing fields, ended at 9 p. m. the same day with his neck and legs tangled helplessly in a fence on the land of Mrs. John Bell north of Circleville—not too far from his Pickaway street home.

Mrs. Bell heard the exhausted animal whining and called Harry Riffle, Pickaway County dog warden. Bucky was identified by his license and was returned to the Fissell residence.

Bucky is reported recovering from a severe case of blistered feet and sore legs.

Malaya Banning Commie Party

SINGAPORE, July 23—The government of Malaya officially banned the Communist Party today.

The action followed a series of disturbances on the Malayan peninsula instituted by Communist forces seeking to win control.

The People's Anti-Japanese Army of Comrades Association and the new Democratic Youth League were declared illegal along with the Communist Party.

The announcement said that evidence had established the connection of all three organizations in the planning of the present wave of violence.

Garbage Burial Plan Given OK

CANTON, July 23—Canton's proposed garbage-burying plan had the go-ahead sign today from Ohio's chief health engineer, F. H. Waring.

Waring, in a letter to Dr. P. L. Harris, Stark County health commissioner, said the burial method was preferred to the hog-feeding disposal setup long used in Canton under a contract with the Canton Hog Ranch Co.

City plans to relieve the hog ranch of the disposal task currently are held up by a court order won by Willard E. Heimbuch, who protested that garbage burial would be a health menace to the community near the 600-acre sewage plant site.

CLEVELAND, July 23—"Free and fair government elections" will be the topic under discussion here tomorrow at a conference of 12 unofficial delegates from foreign countries as well as American states.

The conference, sponsored by the World Citizenship Movement, is the first session to be held in co-operation with the Council on World Affairs.

The group will discuss the value of free elections, what commitments have been made by individual nations the last few years to guarantee such elections, and how far these commitments have been met.

No Draft Calls Before Oct. 1

WASHINGTON, July 23—Selective Service officials indicated today that only a small fraction of the youths who register for the new draft will be called for duty with the armed forces.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, said he does not expect any call for men from the Army, chief beneficiary of the draft, until after registration is complete. He refused to estimate how many men the first call would include. But he did say it was unlikely that any men would be inducted before Oct. 1.

Russia Towing Sleeve Targets

BERLIN, July 23—British officials disclosed today that Russian planes are towing target sleeves across the Allied air corridor leading to Berlin. They interpreted this latest Soviet move as an apparent opening of a direct campaign to drive the Western Powers from the air corridor, set aside by four power agreement, for access to the former German capital.

Tots Save Selves From River Death

EAST LIVERPOOL, July 23—Two East Liverpool children apparently were none the worse today for a 150-foot passage through a 30-inch surface sewer. The children, Joann Snyder, 4, and her brother, Benjamin, 11, were trapped by the onrushing water yesterday while playing in the street. They saved themselves from being swept into the Ohio river by grasping a tree when they emerged at the river's edge.

Polio Nurses Being Sought

TOLEDO, July 23—Dr. Jean Koupal, chief of the Bulbar polio ward of Maumee Valley hospital here, sent out an urgent appeal today for trained nurses.

Dr. Koupal reported the shortage of nurses has become serious at the hospital and the situation may get out of control if qualified nurses are not found immediately.

Two new polio victims were admitted to the hospital yesterday. They are Sandra Watson, 14-month-old, and Sallie Procter, 20-months-old, both of Toledo.

Plucky Bucky Travels 45 Miles To Home

When Mrs. George Fissell of North Pickaway street let her dog, Bucky, out of her Buckeye Lake cabin last week for his morning stroll, she didn't realize it would be a 45-mile extended tour.

However, the tan and white shepherd with the heart of an infantryman and legs of Olympic runner, nearly lost his life by following his instinct.

Bucky's 45-mile hike bounding fences, fording streams and crossing fields, ended at 9 p. m. the same day, with his neck and legs tangled helplessly in a fence on the land of Mrs. John Bell north of Circleville—not too far from his Pickaway street home.

Mrs. Bell heard the exhausted animal whining and called Harry Riffle, Pickaway County dog warden. Bucky was identified by his license and was returned to the Fissell residence.

Bucky is reported recovering from a severe case of blistered feet and sore legs.

Malaya Banning Commie Party

SINGAPORE, July 23—The government of Malaya officially banned the Communist Party today.

The action followed a series of disturbances on the Malayan peninsula instituted by Communist forces seeking to win control.

The People's Anti-Japanese Army of Comrades Association and the new Democratic Youth League were declared illegal along with the Communist Party.

The announcement said that evidence had established the connection of all three organizations in the planning of the present wave of violence.

Garbage Burial Plan Given OK

CANTON, July 23—Canton's proposed garbage-burying plan had the go-ahead sign today from Ohio's chief health engineer, F. H. Waring.

Waring, in a letter to Dr. P. L. Harris, Stark County health commissioner, said the burial method was preferred to the hog-feeding disposal setup long used in Canton under a contract with the Canton Hog Ranch Co.

City plans to relieve the hog ranch of the disposal task currently are held up by a court order won by Willard E. Heimbuch, who protested that garbage burial would be a health menace to the community near the 600-acre sewage plant site.

High Prices Ahead For '48 Turkeys

Extra Care Urged Near Marketing

COLUMBUS, July 23 — Ohio turkey growers are advised by D. D. Moyer, poultry husbandry specialist, Ohio state university, to use extra care to save every bird possible because the U. S. turkey crop is going to be small and the prices high at holiday time.

Ohio turkeys are about to the halfway mark in age but they have two-thirds of the way to go in laying on weight. Moyer claims the most important factor in avoiding disease in the turkey flock is to keep the birds off contaminated ground.

He declares two weeks is the limit of safety for confining birds on the same area and that moving the birds to new pasture once a week is better. He advises mowing the turkey range to keep the growth fresh enough to provide green feed at all times.

Ohio turkey growers can plant rye to furnish late pasture for birds which are nearly ready for market.

A SOD FIELD to be planted to rye can be plowed so strips of sod are left so roosts, feeders, and waterers can be moved more easily than they could be changed on plowed ground that might be muddy at times.

Moyer says dangerous bacteria lurk and multiply in wet ground around waterers on the turkey range, so he suggests the waterer be placed on a raised platform which is made of slats or is covered with wire so turkeys cannot get to the ground which is kept moist by waste water.

The waterer itself should be of a type that prevents turkeys from wading in the water supply. Many farmers quit producing turkeys when feed prices soared.

A 15-pound turkey at market time represents 75 to 90 pounds of feed plus all the rest of the expense of producing one of the most difficult birds to rear. A piece of paper blowing across the range may start a panic that kills enough turkeys to take all the profits out of a year's work, or disease may wipe out most of a flock within a few weeks of marketing time.

JONATHAN, LOYAL FRIEND

HE RISKED HIS OWN LIFE FOR DAVID

Scripture—I Samuel 18-20; 23:16-18; II Samuel 1:1-27; 21:7.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
FRIENDSHIP IS interpreted by the dictionary as "united with affection or esteem; mutual attachment."

To have a real friend—loyal and true—is one of the finest experiences human beings enjoy on earth. There is a mutual attraction when two people meet, perhaps, or possibly the friendship flowers only after a period of time when the two grow to know each other well.

Nations as well as individuals form friendships—usually for self-interest. France and the United States have always been friendly to each other, because some Frenchmen helped us win the War of Independence, and that country was the first to recognize the new republic, the United States of America.

On the other hand, antagonisms between nations often lead to war—clashing ideologies result in recriminations, then subversive acts, then open warfare, as was proved in World War II. The ordinary people of the world are friendly; they meet one another from other lands with pleasure and profit to both. Educators, labor groups, scientists meet and collaborate, but all are led into combat through the unfriendliness of the few top men of a rival nation. What to do about it? That is what the world must learn.

Jonathan, son of King Saul of Israel, was a true friend, loyal through everything, willing to give his life, if need be, for one whom he loved.

The story is a familiar one. David, a mere stripling, had, with a simple sling shot such as boys use, felled the Philistine giant, Goliath, and cut off his head when the Philistines attacked the Israelites. Even Abner, captain of the Hebrew host, did not know who David was when the king asked him. Saul told Abner to find out, and the captain brought David before Saul.

At David's modest answer to Saul's question, "Whose son art thou?" "I am the son of thy servant Jesse the Bethlehemite," Jonathan, who was near by, felt that "his soul was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul."

At first all went smoothly with the friendship of the two youths.

David behaved wisely, put on no airs in his new-found fame. Saul set him over his men-of-war and he was accepted by all. But when women of the cities came out to meet the king and rejoice in the victory, they seemed to minimize Saul's achievements and exalt those of David. "Saul hath slain his thousands," and David his tens of thousands," and Saul, who knew he had offended the Lord, immediately became jealous and determined to get rid of him.

Saul might have succeeded in putting David out of the way if it had not been for his own son, Jonathan. The king had told Jonathan and all his servants to kill David, and David had to go into hiding, but Jonathan talked to his father, asking why he was so angry with the youth who had done nothing but good to the house of Saul and his countrymen.

Saul's evil spirit was quieted for the time, but not for long, and it soon flared again when David was playing the harp to soothe him. A hurled javelin missed David by inches and again he fled into hiding.

Jonathan found David and David asked him, "What have I done, what is mine iniquity? and what is my sin before thy father, that he seeketh my life?" Jonathan comforted him saying that he would do whatever David wanted him to, and would let him know how Saul felt toward him. David, hidden in a field, was again warned by Jonathan to flee for his life, and all through David's exile, he knew he had one loyal and loving friend at court. Jonathan even risked his own life when his father's anger was kindled against him because of his championship of David.

Jonathan saw then that Saul's anger against David would never be appeased except David were dead, so he told David to "Go in peace, forasmuch as we have sworn both of us in the name of the Lord, saying, The Lord be between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed forever," and the two embraced and parted, never to see each other again.

It was when David was in exile that the Philistines again attacked the Israelites and both Saul and Jonathan were killed in battle, leaving David to mourn his true friend.

The story is a familiar one. David, a mere stripling, had, with a simple sling shot such as boys use, felled the Philistine giant, Goliath, and cut off his head when the Philistines attacked the Israelites. Even Abner, captain of the Hebrew host, did not know who David was when the king asked him. Saul told Abner to find out, and the captain brought David before Saul.

At David's modest answer to Saul's question, "Whose son art thou?" "I am the son of thy servant Jesse the Bethlehemite," Jonathan, who was near by, felt that "his soul was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul."

At first all went smoothly with the friendship of the two youths.

David behaved wisely, put on no airs in his new-found fame. Saul set him over his men-of-war and he was accepted by all. But when women of the cities came out to meet the king and rejoice in the victory, they seemed to minimize Saul's achievements and exalt those of David. "Saul hath slain his thousands," and Saul, who knew he had offended the Lord, immediately became jealous and determined to get rid of him.

Saul might have succeeded in putting David out of the way if it had not been for his own son, Jonathan. The king had told Jonathan and all his servants to kill David, and David had to go into hiding, but Jonathan talked to his father, asking why he was so angry with the youth who had done nothing but good to the house of Saul and his countrymen.

Saul's evil spirit was quieted for the time, but not for long, and it soon flared again when David was playing the harp to soothe him. A hurled javelin missed David by inches and again he fled into hiding.

Jonathan found David and David asked him, "What have I done, what is mine iniquity? and what is my sin before thy father, that he seeketh my life?"

Jonathan comforted him saying that he would do whatever David wanted him to, and would let him know how Saul felt toward him. David, hidden in a field, was again warned by Jonathan to flee for his life, and all through David's exile, he knew he had one loyal and loving friend at court. Jonathan even risked his own life when his father's anger was kindled against him because of his championship of David.

Jonathan saw then that Saul's anger against David would never be appeased except David were dead, so he told David to "Go in peace, forasmuch as we have sworn both of us in the name of the Lord, saying, The Lord be between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed forever," and the two embraced and parted, never to see each other again.

It was when David was in exile that the Philistines again attacked the Israelites and both Saul and Jonathan were killed in battle, leaving David to mourn his true friend.

McKenley To Be Beaten, Yankee Olympic Says In Newest Theory

LONDON, July 23—The Cromwellian gusto of the American Olympic team, which has been noticeably expansive since it completed its transatlantic training, reached new proportions today.

This philosophy of optimism envisioned the theoretical defeat by the United States of the great Herb McKenzie, former University of Illinois star now representing his native Jamaica, in the 400-meter run. This hitherto grandiose dream became "a distinct possibility" after the arrival of South Africa's speedy Dennis Shore with the story that he, Shore, plans to race it out with McKenzie from gun to gun.

Dean Cromwell, coach of the American team, seized upon this bit of information as money from home for his two 400-meter stars—Mal Whitfield of the U. S. Army and Ohio State, and Dave Bolen, of Boulder, Colo. Cromwell said:

"That's the best news Whitfield's got in a long time. And Bolen too. If Shore takes McKenzie out to a sizzling start, Whitfield and Bolen may outkick both in the stretch."

THE HEAD man of the tracksters is making no secret that he is counting on Mel Patton of Southern California winning both sprints, with Barney Ewell close up, and American fieldsters winning six of their eight events.

Cromwell says that Wembley's track is conducive to fast American performances, being ideal whether wet or dry for strider types like Patton, Harrison Dillard, Whitfield and Herb Barton.

Most of the American athletes have been under restraint but were told to step out today. A few exceeded the cautionary limit yesterday. This group included Dick Morcom, of Durham, N. H., with his first day's performance of 14 feet three inches in the pole vault.

The American flag was raised at Uxbridge yesterday during formal welcome ceremonies for the United States squad.

Wally Ris, of Iowa, is supposed to have effected a miraculous cure during these proceedings.

The yarn goes that when Ris jerked to attention to salute the flag, his trick football knee snapped back into place, thus restoring America's No. 1 100-meter free style swimmer to perfect physical condition. Reporters were unable to confirm this story.

Tribe Needs 9-Inning Pitchers

38 Hurlers Used In Last 8 Days

NEW YORK, July 23—It is difficult to see how the Cleveland Indians are going to win the American League pennant unless some of their pitchers develop the ability to pitch nine innings.

If Lou Boudreau ever should lose out as Cleveland's manager, he could easily get a job juggling pitchers in vaudeville. During the past eight days, Boudreau has used 38 pitchers and has gotten only one complete game out of the bunch.

Bob Feller, supposed to be the ace of the staff, has won nine games, but has lost 12. He failed the Indians again last night when they lost to New York, 6 to 5, before 68,258 fans in Yankee Stadium.

New York's Joe DiMaggio confirmed that he definitely is out of his record batting slump by belting a grand-slam homer.

The Indians are only half a game in front of the persistent Philadelphia Athletics, who had to go 12 innings to nose out the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 7, in another night game.

EVEN MORE disturbing to the Indians' sleep, they are only two games in front of the third-place Boston Red Sox, who with an eight-game winning streak are the hottest team in the circuit.

The Red Sox beat the Chicago White Sox twice yesterday, 3 to 0 and 5 to 3, thanks to three refugees from the St. Louis Browns.

Denny Galehouse held the Pale Hose to five hits in the opener and Ellis Kinder handcuffed them in the nightcap. Vern Stephens, another ex-Brownie, hit a homer in each game.

Forrest Thompson of Washington won his own game over Detroit, 9 to 8, with a single in the 12th inning. The Tigers gave Hal Newhouser a six-run lead, but Prince Hal was off the beam.

The Boston Braves' game with Cincinnati was rained out but the Braves, National League pace setters still gained ground.

The second-place Brooklyn Dodgers were beaten by Johnny Schmitz, premier south paw of the Chicago Cubs, for the fourth straight time this season, 6 to 3.

Pittsburgh tied the St. Louis Cardinals for third place by downing the Phillies 5 to 3. Rain halted the nightcap after five innings with the score tied at 1 to 1.

Sheldon Jones of the New York Giants beat the Cardinals 6 to 3, but St. Louis won the second game, 7 to 6, on a single by Nippy Jones in the 11th.

Reading Open Field Narrows
 READING, Pa., July 23—The field in the $15,000 Reading Open golf tournament will be out to 60 survivors after today's round, with indication that superior golf will be necessary to qualify.

Not less than 40 top-flight pros and amateurs bettered regulation figures in yesterday's first round.

Leaders in the assault on par were four stars who tied the course record of 65, seven under par. They were: Defending Champion E. J. Harrison, of Little Rock, Ark.; Johnny Palmer, of Badin, N. C.; Rod Munday, of York, Pa.; and Fred Haas Jr., of New Orleans.

South Africa's Bobby Locke blew a short putt on the final green to finish one stroke behind the pace-setters.

Experts Frown On Gavilan Show
 NEW YORK, July 23—New York boxing experts were not overly impressed today with Kid Gavilan as a threat to Ray Robinson's welterweight championship crown.

Gavilan won a unanimous decision in Madison Square Garden last night over Roman Alvarez of New York.

However, Gavilan, a 1-to-4 favorite, showed that he does not possess a finishing wallop. He dropped Alvarez for a count of six with a right to the chin in the first round. Alvarez was saved by the bell, but thereafter his superb boxing prevented the Havana battler from scoring a knockout.

McKenley To Be Beaten, Yankee Olympic Says In Newest Theory

LONDON, July 23—The Cromwellian gusto of the American Olympic team, which has been noticeably expansive since it completed its transatlantic training, reached new proportions today.

This philosophy of optimism envisioned the theoretical defeat by the United States of the great Herb McKenley, former University of Illinois star now representing his native Jamaica, in the 400-meter run. This hitherto grandiose dream became "a distinct possibility" after the arrival of South Africa's speedy Dennis Shore with the story that he, Shore, plans to race it out with McKenley from gun to gun.

Dean Cromwell, coach of the American team, seized upon this bit of information as money from home for his two 400-meter stars—Mal Whitfield of the U. S. Army and Ohio State, and Dave Bolen, of Boulder, Colo. Cromwell said:

"That's the best news Whitfield's got in a long time. And Bolen too. If Shore takes McKenley out to a sizzling start, Whitfield and Bolen may outkick both in the stretch."

THE HEAD man of the tracksters is making no secret that he is counting on Mel Patton of Southern California winning both sprints, with Barney Ewell close up, and American fieldsters winning nine of their eight events.

Cromwell says that Wembley's track is conducive to fast American performances, being ideal whether wet or dry for strider types like Patton, Harrison Dillard, Whitfield and Herb Barton.

Most of the American athletes have been under restraint but were told to step out today. A few exceeded the cautionary limit yesterday. This group included Dick Morcom, of Durham, N. H., with his first day's performance of 14 feet three inches in the pole vault.

The American Flag was raised at Uxbridge yesterday during formal welcome ceremonies for the United States squad.

Wally Ris, of Iowa, is supposed to have effected a miraculous cure during these proceedings. The yarn goes that when Ris jerked to attention to salute the flag, his trick football knee snapped back into place, thus restoring America's No. 1 100-meter free style swimmer to perfect physical condition. Reporters were unable to confirm this story.

Tribe Needs 9-Inning Pitchers

38 Hurlers Used In Last 8 Days

NEW YORK, July 23—It is difficult to see how the Cleveland Indians are going to win the American League pennant unless some of their pitchers develop the ability to pitch nine innings.

If Lou Boudreau ever should lose out as Cleveland's manager, he could easily get a job juggling pitchers in vaudeville. During the past eight days, Boudreau has used 38 pitchers and has gotten only one complete game out of the bunch.

Bob Feller, supposed to be the ace of the staff, has won nine games, but has lost 12. He failed the Indians again last night when they lost to New York, 6 to 5, before 66,258 fans in Yankee Stadium.

New York's Joe DiMaggio confirmed that he definitely is out of his record batting slump by belting a grand-slam homer.

The Indians are only half a game in front of the persistent Philadelphia Athletics, who had to go 12 innings to nose out the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 7, in another night game.

EVEN MORE disturbing to the Indians' sleep, they are only two games in front of the third-place Boston Red Sox, who with an eight-game winning streak are the hottest team in the circuit.

The Red Sox beat the Chicago White Sox twice yesterday, 3 to 0 and 5 to 3, thanks to three refugees from the St. Louis Browns.

Denny Galehouse held the Pale Hose to five hits in the opener and Ellis Kinder handcuffed them in the nightcap. Vern Stephens, another ex-Browner, hit a homer in each game.

Forrest Thompson of Washington won his own game over Detroit, 9 to 8, with a single in the 12th inning. The Tigers gave Hal Newhouser a six-run lead, but Prince Hal was off the beam.

The Boston Braves' game with Cincinnati was rained out but the Braves, National League pace setters still gained ground.

The second-place Brooklyn Dodgers were beaten by Johnny Schmitz, premier south paw of the Chicago Cubs, for the fourth straight time this season, 6 to 3.

Pittsburgh tied the St. Louis Cardinals for third place by downing the Phillies 5 to 3. Rain halted the nightcap after five innings with the score tied at 1 to 1.

Sheldon Jones of the New York Giants beat the Cardinals 6 to 3, but St. Louis won the second game, 7 to 6, on a single by Nippy Jones in the 11th.

Brewers Widen Gap In Race For AA Flag

By International News Service
 Milwaukee's Brewers put a half-game of daylight between themselves and second place Indianapolis in the American Association today, and they did it by playing a half game.

The Brewers and the Louisville Colonels managed to play only five innings last night before rain halted play. Milwaukee won the abbreviated contest, 5 to 2, and gained ground on idle Indianapolis.

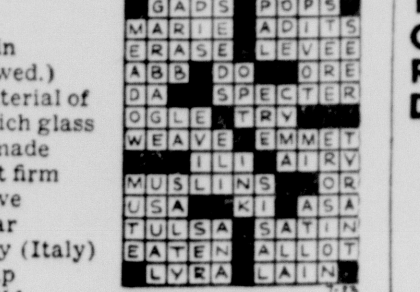

The Brewers, who have lost only 11 games at home all season, now leave the friendly environs, starting a long road tour at St. Paul tonight. Indianapolis plays at seventh place Toledo.

Columbus clung to a half-game hold on third place by beating Kansas City, 4 to 1, on Ray Yochim's three-hit hurling. The only run off Yochim was a homerun by Hank Bauer, his fifth in two days.

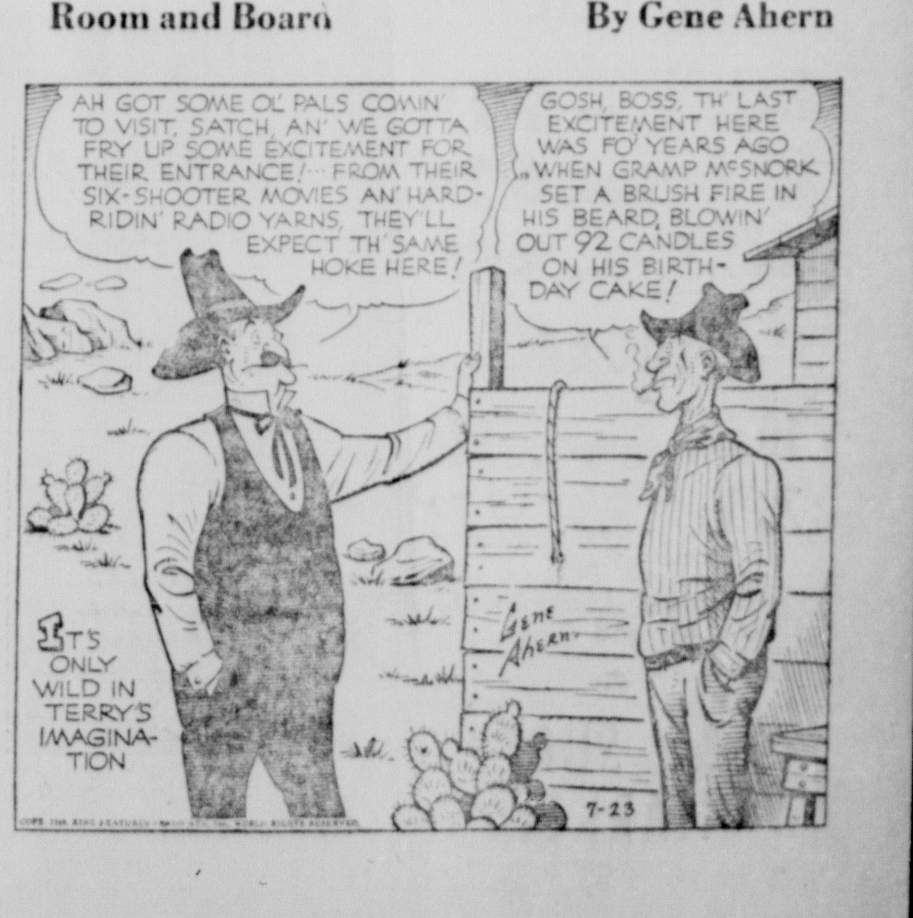

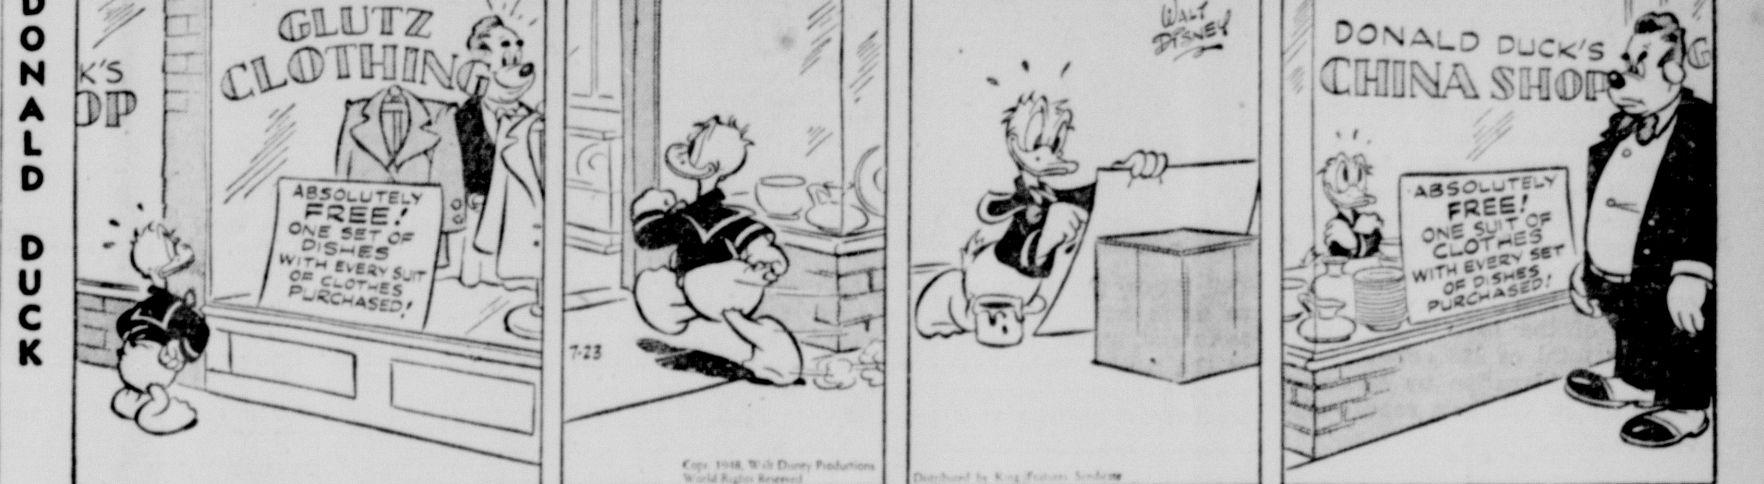

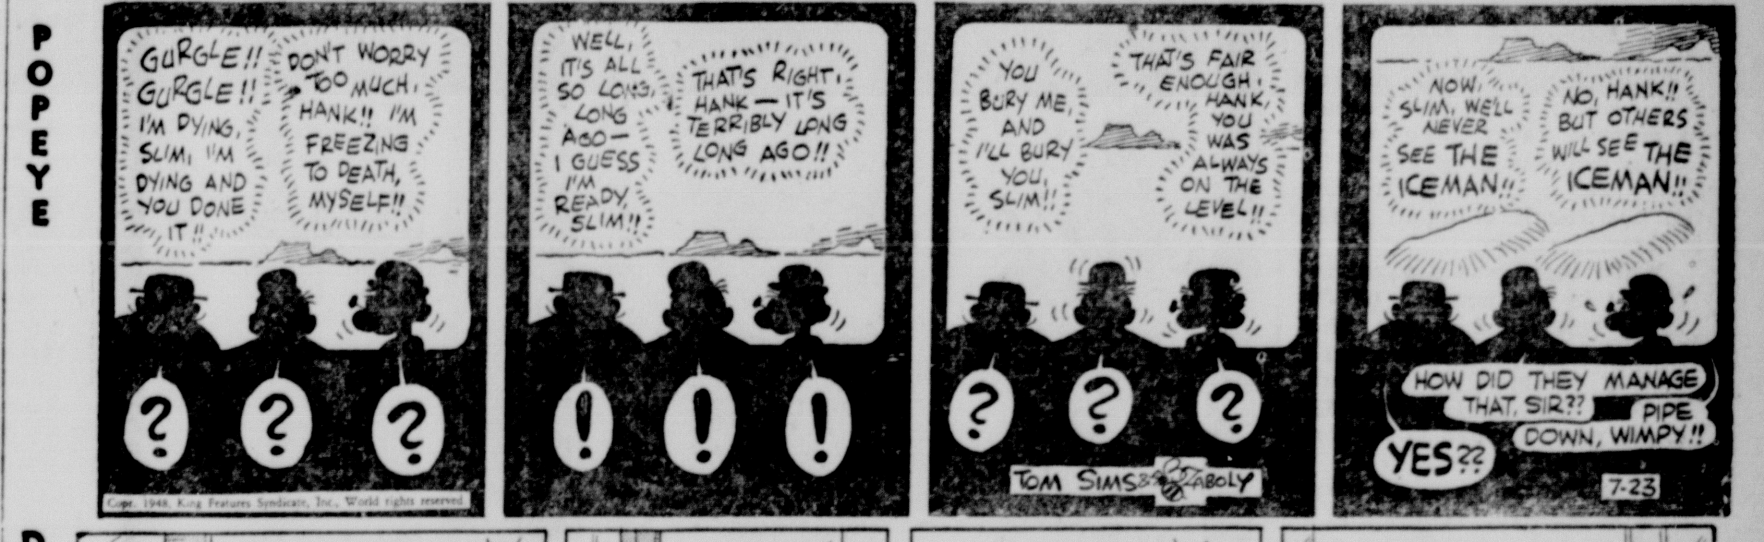

St. Paul stayed close on the Red Birds' heels with a 4-to-3 triumph over Minneapolis. Phil Haugstad allowed only five hits, two of them homers by Joe LaFata and Elbie Fletcher. Eric Tipton had a circuit clout for the winning Saints.

Divorce Rate In Pickaway Appears To Be Leveling Off

Two-Year Study Shows New Trend

116 Cases Decided In Last 12 Months

Although most of the nation still is suffering from an increase in divorce rates, Pickaway County appears to be one of the first areas in the U. S. in which the postwar leveling-off period is showing results.

While there was a slight increase in the number of divorce suits filed during the last 12 months in Pickaway County common pleas court, records show no less than 116 cases were decided in each of the last two years.

These figures were gleaned from a two-year comparative report on judicial statistics compiled by Clerk of Courts A. L. Wilder covering the periods of July 1, 1946, to June 30, 1947, and July 1, 1947, to June 30, 1948.

In the 1946-47 period, 105 divorce suits were filed in court with 91 pending from the previous year. In the last 12 months, however, 116 cases were filed during the year with 80 holding over from last year.

Both of the last two years show a total of 196 cases taken under consideration by common pleas court, Wilder's report disclosed.

DURING BOTH years included in the report, divorces granted to wives more than doubled the number of decrees handed to husbands, the clerk reported.

In 1946-47, the distaff side of the family received 49 decrees and dismissed 41 cases. In the same period, husbands were allowed 21 of the suits and another five cases were dismissed by the males.

Compared to the last 12 months, wives were decreed 54 divorces and 31 of the cases were dismissed by the women. Meanwhile, 21 divorces were granted to husbands and another 11 cases were dropped by the family breadwinners, Wilder declared.

Gross neglect of duty leads all other causes for divorce, with extreme cruelty running a poor second in Pickaway County separation petitions, the clerk of courts said.

The first 12 months of the report reveals a total of 147 gross neglect cases were scheduled for consideration. Of these, 72 were pending from the previous period and 75 were filed during the year.

Last year, 62 gross neglect cases were already on file from the 1946-47 months and another 72 were filed during the year bringing the total to 108 gross neglect cases into court in the 1947-48 period.

Extreme cruelty cases totalled 39 for consideration in the first 12 months and 20 in the last year. Other causes listed for divorce were willful absence and adultery, Wilder revealed.

During the 1947-48 period, Wilder said, a total of 65 children were placed in the custody of their mothers. Fathers were given custody of 12 more and six children were earmarked for county care or in the hands of relatives.

Old Con Game Still Working

CLEVELAND, July 23 — The oldest con game in the books had claimed another victim today.

Mrs. Hannah Thomas, 72-year-old East Cleveland, was shopping in a downtown Cleveland store yesterday when she overheard a pair of women discussing $9,600 they had found.

Apparently shocked when they realized she knew of their wealth, the two told Mrs. Thomas they would have to share it with her and asked her to give them a deposit to prove her good faith.

Mrs. Thomas withdrew $2,500 from her bank account and turned it over to one of the women. The pair then disappeared to "talk things over with the boss."

Mrs. Thomas waited two hours and then called police.

CLEVELAND, July 23—Prosecution attorneys were expected to blast away today at what they angrily called a barefaced lie by Ernest L. Molnar, former Cleveland police lieutenant charged with bribery.

Molnar and Cuyahoga County Prosecutor Frank T. Cullitan clashed violently yesterday on cross-examination in which the ex-vice squad chief charged that Assistant County Prosecutor Theodore M. Williams "requested" him to testify for the defense in the kidnap-trial of Luis Lorenzo.

Lorenzo, policy racket kingpin, is the state's chief witness against Molnar.

Cullitan termed Molnar's testimony "a barefaced lie" and reserved the right to cross-examine Molnar further today after other witnesses have gone for the defense.

SANDUSKY, July 23—Erie County liquor dealers had the assurance today of the statewide association that it will intervene unless conditions in the enforcement division of the Sandusky area improve within 30 days.

Norman C. Parr, executive secretary of the Buckeye Retail Liquor Dealers Association in Columbus, told a meeting of Erie County permit holders last night that if satisfactory progress is not made within a month, the state executive board will meet and demand action.

Parr recommended that local and state authorities be given time to clean up the situation.
